	passage
 The last half of my life has been lived in one of those painful epochs of human history during which the world is getting worse, and past victories which had seemed to be definitive have turned out to be only temporary. When I was young, Victorian optimism was taken for granted. It was thought that freedom and prosperity would spread gradually throughout the world by an orderly process, and it was hoped that cruelty, tyranny, and injustice would continually diminish. Hardly anyone was haunted by the fear of great wars. Hardly anyone thought of the nineteenth century as a brief interlude between past and future barbarism. 34. The author feels sad about the later part of his life because he was nostalgic about his childhood the world had no become prospectus the author had not won any further victories the world was painfully disturbed during that period of time.
35.	The victories of the past 1. brought permanent peace and prosperity 2. ended cruelty, tyranny and injustice 3. proved to be temporary events
36.	4. filled men with a sense of pessimism The word definitive as used in the passage means
	1. defined 2. final 3. temporary 4. incomplete
37	During the Victorian age people believed that1. Strife would increase2. There would be unlimited freedom3. Was would be fought on a bigger scale4. Peace would prevail and happiness would en-gulf the whole world.

A prier internue between past and fature parbarism can be interpreted as
